LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS

Some of It May Interest You; All Of It Is Worth a Perusal

Mr. Donohoe Entertains Friends
Last Sunday James Donohoe was a genial host to a large party of Holbrook people and other friends, who motored to his country home at Adamana. There were 19 people in the party and Mr. Donohoe had prepared a feast generous enough for twice that many, and sufficiently delectable to satisfy the most exacting epicure.

After dinner the party visited the painted desert, returning late in the evening to their homes, enthusiastic in praise of Mr. Donohoe's hospitality.

Winslow Church Dedicated

Last Sunday the new M. E. church in Winslow was dedicated with impressive services. The exterior of the church building is constructed of red sandstone and stucco; it was designed by W. A. Parr and was constructed under his supervision. Its cost was $7,000, and there is not a dollar of indebtedness against the structure, $1045 having been raised after the services Sunday to finish paying the cost of the building.

The services Sunday morning were conducted by Dr. A. W. Adkinson; in the evening by Rev. Thomas Hamblly of Flagstaff.

Rev. Cole, pastor of the church, is deserving of great credit for his success in securing the new church. He has been in charge of the Methodist work in Winslow for only one year, and the new church building is a splendid monument to his ability as a church builder.

An Exciting Runaway

Wednesday shortly after noon a team of horses belonging to Frank A. Zuck, and driven by him, started to run when in front of the Holbrook State Bank. Realizing that he could not stop the team, as they passed the postoffice Mr. Zuck jumped from the wagon and sustained a slight injury to his right hand. The team continued down the street past the Putney and Babbitt warehouses and were halted near the Standard Oil plant by running into two other teams.

One of the horses was seriously injured by having a broken piece of the wagon pole driven into his lower shoulder. The runaway was caused by the team becoming frightened when a neckstrap became unfastened and allowed the neckyoke to drop to the ground. Mr. Zuck considers it fortunate that he was alone when the team started to run, and he congratulates himself that his injuries were not greater and his loss so small.

Johnson Was Insane

That James Johnson, the Holbrook restaurant man who murdered his wife and committed suicide near Taylor, July 5, was subject to frequent attacks of insanity is evidenced from the following comment made by the Graham County Guardian of Saford:

Johnson, who is the son of Mrs. J. S. Johnson, mother of Mrs. George Graham, lived here with his wife and daughter several months ago before going to Globe. At that time, while temporarily insane, he attempted suicide by drinking a bottle of lye, but was saved by the quick work of Dr. Martin, who had been hastily summoned.

The family moved to Globe and later to Taylor, Navajo county.

Elks Follies in Winslow

The Elks follies which will be held in Winslow in August from the seventh to the thirteenth, promises to be the most successful celebration held in northern Arizona in years. Under the capable hand of G. C. Bazell, who has the management of the follies, all plans are being put in practical shape and final arrangements are being closed. During the week the immense crowds expected from every town and hamlet in the north will have a chance to see some of the same sights that hundreds of people crossed the continent to see at the San Francisco exposition. There will be aeroplanes going over Winslow continually. Some of the best automobile racers in Arizona and New Mexico will show all kinds of speed. Floats, parades, bands and everything that goes to make a celebration successful will be provided. The democratic central committee will also meet in Winslow during the week. Reduced rates on the railroad will be granted.

Mrs. Braxton Visited Coronado

Mrs. George M. Braxton, of Holbrook, Arizona, who is spending a month in this section, visited with the Strand force for a short time Wednesday. Her husband, George M. Braxton, formerly one of the owners of the Strand, is now engaged in the newspaper business at Holbrook and doing well.—Coronado (Calif.) Strand.

Mrs. Braxton reached her home in Holbrook Wednesday afternoon from California, stopping for two days at the Grand Canyon. She was accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. May C. Dodson, of Terre Haute, Ind., who has been with her during her stay in California. Mrs. Dodson will remain in Holbrook for several weeks, before returning to her home in Indiana.

Big Sale of Seep

Last Saturday a deal was closed whereby Clarence E. Owens sold to C. Hess, Jr., and E. B. Newman his sheep interests. Included in the sale were 3500 head of sheep and about 2000 head of spring lambs; also leases of land in the forest reserve and the improvements thereon. The consideration in the deal, which was cash amounts to approximately $40,000.

The ranch of Mr. Owens lies southeast of Heber and adjoins the ranches of Mr. Hess and Mr. Newman, who have been engaged in the sheep business in that locality for several years.

Mr. Owens will increase his investments in cattle and will devote his whole attention to that branch of the livestock business. He is already interested with J. W. Richards in a big cattle ranch.

A Good Record

In another column of the News will be found a new ad for the Holbrook State Bank. This bank has made a splendid record since it started less than two months ago under a new management. Mr. Reynolds, the cashier, expressed himself as being very much pleased with the record his bank has made since he assumed charge of it; he greatly appreciates the patronage that has been given him and he will endeavor to merit and receive a continuation of this patronage.

While they had not come here with any intention of holding a public meeting, they were induced by friends to do so and a large crowd had the pleasure of meeting the distinguished gentlemen. Each made a brief address and their remarks were greeted with appreciation and enthusiasm. We notice that many who were indifferent and noncommittal before their visit are now wearing the Olney badge.

No Trace of Missing Man

Up to the time the News went to press nothing had been heard of Charles H. Moore, the Holbrook young man who was lost in the Rocky mountains near Frazer, Col., July 5. Harvey Moore, a brother of the missing man, has been in Frazer for ten days; he had decided that it was useless to continue the search and wired his parents in Holbrook that he intended to return home. The parents, however, had not abandoned hope and they decided to go to Frazer themselves, and they left Holbrook Sunday night for that point, wiring their son Harvey that they were coming.

In the absence of any evidence that the missing man has met death from accident or exposure, in such event his body would certainly have been found,—the most plausible theory is that he suffered a lapse of memory and wandered away to a strange locality. That he will eventually be found alive and restored to health and friends is the belief of those most conversant with the facts.

Judge Ross a Strong Candidate

Henry D. Ross, justice of the supreme court of Arizona, was in Navajo county a few days this week, working in the interests of his candidacy for re-election. Lack of time prevented his visiting Holbrook but he spent a day in Winslow.

Judge Ross is now serving his second term as justice of the supreme court of the state; the record he has made during his incumbency of this high office is an enviable one, and it is a record that entitles him to reelection.

Prior to his elevation to the supreme bench Judge Ross practiced law in Prescott; there his practice was large and extended throughout the northern part of the state, it bringing him frequently to Navajo and Apache counties.

In these two last named counties, and in his home county of Yavapai, Judge Ross will poll a large majority of the democratic vote at the primary election in September, and it is the opinion of his many admirers throughout the state that his nomination is a certainty.
